SC criticises trend of seeking bail under guise of challenging validity of PMLA in money laundering cases

NEW DELHI, MAY 30 /--/ The Supreme Court on Tuesday deprecated the trend of the accused in money laundering cases using Article 32 petitions to challenge a summons or seek bail under the guise of calling into question the provisions of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA). A vacation bench of Justices Bela M Trivedi and Prashant Kumar Mishra, said filing such petitions challenging an Act, and in the process seeking consequential reliefs, amounts to bypassing other available legal remedies. "The court is constrained to observe that despite the Vijay Madanlal judgment there is a trend prevailing in writ petitions filed before this Court under Article 32 challenging the constitutional validity of Sections 15 and 63 and other provisions of the PMLA, which has been decided finally, and then seek consequential relief. These reliefs are bypassing other forums which are open to the petitioners," the bench said. The apex court had in the Madanlal judgement upheld the Enforcement Directorate's powers related to arrest, attachment of property involved in money laundering, search and seize under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act. Article 32 of the Constitution gives individuals the right to approach the Supreme Court if they feel their fundamental rights have been violated. The apex court's observations came while hearing a batch of petitions filed by the people facing probe in the alleged liquor scam case in Chhattisgarh. Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the Enforcement Directorate (ED), raised serious objections about the maintainability of the pleas. The government law officer pressed for some observations made by the court against such pleas to be recorded in the order. Mehta said there is a new trend to file a petition challenging the constitutionality of a law and then get a no coercive action order, which is actually an anticipatory bail. "This must be deprecated in no uncertain terms. People are being approached that instead of asking for anticipatory bail challenge the vires of the legislation. There needs to be some observation (in the order)," the SG said. Additional solicitor gen-

Union culture minister Reddy visits Purana Quila excavation site

NEW DELHI, MAY 30 /--/ Union culture minister G Kishan Reddy visited the Purana Quila excavation site on Tuesday and said the government considers it as an "important archaeological site". The fresh round of excavation which began in January is being led by Vasant Swarnkar and it is the third season of excavation at Purana Qila, after excavations in the year 2013-14 and 2017-18. Reddy visited the excavation site and saw the trenches and artefacts on display. A range of artefacts have been unearthed as a result of multiple rounds of excavations, which date from Pre-Mauryan era to Mughal period, a senior ASI official said. Pre-Mauryan artefacts include beads and other ancient objects, he said. Officials in January this year had said that archaeologists were all set to carry out a fresh round of excavation at Delhi's 16th century Purana Qila with an aim to expose and preserve the trenches that were excavated in previous such exercises. Another ASI official said a fresh trench has also been dug at the excavation site. Reddy said, "We consider this as an important archaeological site", and the excavation is being done by a select team of specialists. The Ministry of Culture in a statement earlier had said that during the closure of the previous season's excavation, "evidence of layers pre-dating the Mauryan period was found". (PTI)
